Another Definition Of Social Credit

By R. T. ELIOTT, K.C.

The official organ of the Social Credit Secretariat in the London edition of February 21, 1936, publishes an article credited to Mr. J. C. Larkin of the United States. In this article, referring to Social Credit, another, and practically altogether new definition of Social Credit is given.

"Douglas would establish in the U. S. Treasury a National Credit Account in which the whole nation is credited with its total production of wealth and charged what it consumes.

"The surplus of production over consumption shown in this account, representing wealth produced but not purchasable by consumers, would be monetized in the form of credit. This Social Credit, a monetization of credit free of debt is backed by real wealth and issued by the treasury to maintain buying power on the same level with production.

Douglas suggests that this national credit surplus be paid in National Douglas dollars, consumers through all retail purchases, thus reducing prices by the specific amount they exceed current consumer buying power. The total credit so issued at any time would exactly equal the difference between buying power and price.

This conception of monetizing real credit, combined with its application to the balancing of production and consumption, contains the real heart of the Douglas proposals.

"By means of the price credit factually determined from the national credit account, Douglas would make retail prices reflect the facts of production and consumption. The credit would be drawn upon only as goods are bought by consumers and would be cancelled by consumption. Through low prices the consumer would be enabled to buy more goods with buying power without debt and inflation.

"Government subsidies to industries of public importance are not unusual. The Douglas conception of utilizing real credit to reduce retail prices represents a logical extension of such subsidies, primarily to reduce the cost of consumer buying power, secondarily as needed life-blood to business."

As this explanation is printed in a periodical ably controlled in all matters relating to Social Credit, by Major Douglas himself, it must be taken to be the latest official explanation of the doctrine.

The motive power driving the system along will be a decision by the government that as from a certain date until further notice each dollar in the hands of an individual will have an increased purchasing power, based on the difference between total wealth production and total consumption. The government will then have the right to buy and pay in full ten dollars worth of goods with his ten dollar bill.

At least this is understandable up to the time of completion of the fifteen dollar bill and the purchase of the dollar. What will happen afterwards is beyond any human comprehension.

One billion separate purchases on this basis would run into ten billion dollars in money, and into fifteen billion dollars in value of the goods purchased with that amount of money. This would be certainly enough to make any human comprehension.

Number from the stump, and plan it ready for building for $800,000. The land belongs to the people. The 300 houses would cost about $300,000.

The marketing of livestock would be an important factor in the success of the movement for both state and small farms. It would be essential to have an abattoir where all could get their livestock slaughtered and get the full price for their hides, and a few ten dollar bills would be paid to the abattoir as often as required and get 100 per cent for their hides and wool that they can use.

Now, having a public owned and operated tannery, boot and shoe factory and the finished article at the spread between the raw material and the finished article would stay in Alberta. A woolen mill in Edmonton, publicly owned, would give 14c a lb. $1.35. This would make a suit, and get you 10 pounds of wool for 10 pounds of green hide will make a pair of trousers for $10.00. You get for the green hide is 14c. A public owned tannery where the shoe factory could give you 6c a pound for the green hide.

Each family would pay for two cows at $20 each, and get $20.00 and 10 hens and $10.00 for two chickens. Two cows and five sheep skins would furnish the leather for boots and shoes for the family also tannery and abundance of meat. The wool would be sold to the tannery and the hens would furnish the eggs and young chicks to help pay the grocery bill.

Remember these modern conveniences would save the value of each acre in the township $15.00. The modern conveniences would save the value of each acre in the township $15.00. The modern conveniences would save the value of each acre in the township $15.00.

The cost of setting up the state farm equipment $100,000. Wages $25,000. Houses for 300 families $300,000. Two cows for each family $20,000. Ten hens for each family $10,000. One year revenue from state farm $15,000. Balance $100,000.

Before the money was called for, approximately 75 per cent would be spent for building and the balance would be spent for the modern conveniences because the modern conveniences would save the value of each acre in the township $15.00. The modern conveniences would save the value of each acre in the township $15.00.

All the money I am asking for is approximately $100,000 for the modern conveniences and the balance would be spent for the modern conveniences because the modern conveniences would save the value of each acre in the township $15.00. The modern conveniences would save the value of each acre in the township $15.00.

diers Entrain

PARIS, March 17.—France last night sent 2,000 more troops into the Rhineland frontier area as the official parliamentary army committee declared emergency reinforcements at the border were needed to offset swiftly and satisfactorily.

A war ministry communiqué minimized the urgent nature of the move, however, declaring "It is simply a matter of normal annual rotation of reserves which should have been carried out in 1935."

The 2,000 men of the frontier reserve corps estimated at the east station during the morning, and officers recalling the history-making days of 1914. Blue uniforms and blue-plumed cock-horned helmets about the Rhineland railway tracks en route to the border, officially for a month's maneuvers period.

The parliamentary committee based its report on a survey just concluded. Plans were made Monday for a second army committee inspection of the Rhineland area, including the evacuation of all frontier preparations.

MANITOBA TO HAVE DEFICIT OF $295,229

Forecast When Budget
Submitted to Legislature Monday

WINNIPEG, March 17.—Forecasting a deficit of $295,229 for the fiscal year ending April 30, 1937, the budget was submitted to the Manitoba legislature last night by Hon. E. A. McPherson, provincial treasurer.

Revenue for the year was estimated by Mr. McPherson at $18,973,398 and expenditures of $19,268,627.

PROBABLE SURPLUS
The probable surplus for the fiscal year ending April 30 next was $18,973,398, and Mr. McPherson, the surplus for the previous fiscal year was $75,001.54.

Increase in the exemption for married persons under the wage tax was the only change in taxation included in the budget. The exemption was to be $1,200 annually instead of $600.

Announcing the charge would affect about 20,000 married persons, Mr. McPherson said, and would deprive the province of about $400,000. The total cost of the exemption of $295,229 instead of $184,700.22.

PUBLIC DEBT
The public debt of the province now stands at $120,325,617.51, an increase of $2,324,482.72 from Jan. 1, 1935 to Jan. 31, 1936.

The Manitoba share of relief costs in 1935 was $2,571,276.70, said Mr. McPherson. The total cost of relief to the province since October, 1935, was $18,973,398.12. The relief costs are not included in the budget estimate, Mr. McPherson pointed out, although interest on relief borrowings was included.

MADRID, March 17.—The Spanish cabinet last night agreed to declare a state of alarm for a period of one month throughout the entire country after a series of political disorders which extended even to the estate of President Niceto Alcalá Zamora.

The president signed a decree providing for the revision of all proceedings whereby Jesuit property was to be returned to the Society of Jesus. All orders authorizing the property return were suspended for re-examination.

SERIES INCIDENTS
The attack on the president's property by mobs alleged by police to be Communist was part of a series of incidents which swept across Spain in the last few days. Leftist parliament opened its first session.

An alleged Communist mob attacked the headquarters of Senator Gloria Torres, the 14-year-old son of the president in Jaen province, while another mob seized the president's hacienda at Priego de Cordoba.

STAVED OFF MOB
Senators Torres' servants barricaded her house and staved off the mob until two trucks of storm police came to the rescue. The police removed the president's son to the jail of the city of Jaen for his personal safety. Also guarded there were three local priests and the Marquis de Los Puentes del Moral.
